Doctors Pledge Cooperation in Hospital Public Relations Plan

A medical profession's public relations committee today issued a follow up to the appeal for public support made recently by the board of trustees of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

Committee members Drs. F. G. Bond, chairman, and F. G. Shaw, said in effect that the hospital stands ready to lend its full support to the plan.

"In my determined effort to solve our problems confronting the public to the best of our ability, the doctors have given the board's statement their consideration," Dr. Bond said. "Any statement we make comes after careful decision. Above all, we want the people

"It is our studied opinion that to know that if our profession has been derelict in any respect in assuming its full responsibility in promoting the best of public relationships for the hospital, it was not intentional and we now stand ready to face all of our hospital problems realistically.

"We must all agree that we have one of the finest and best equipped hospitals in the country for a community of this size, and it's to everyone's interest that we all make the most of its possibilities.

"In seeking a solution to the problems which the hospital board has pointed out, the question naturally presents itself: Where do we start?

"To help clarify accreditation and its importance, we feel that a detailed explanation is justified.

Toughening of Home Loan Plans Foreseen

WASHINGTON, April 29 (AP)—Senator Clegg, R., Ind., indicated today the Senate banking committee will "sharpen up" the program of government loans for home repair rather than liberalize it as President Eisenhower asked.

Clegg called a closed meeting of the committee, which heads to chart the future course of an inquiry into irrigations in the housing program.

HA-insured home repair loans are now running at a rate of two million dollars a year.

Average loan is $500.

Deposition of Surgeon Read In Trial Here

A deposition of a Salt Lake City surgeon took most of the morning Thursday in the $114,123.39 damage suit brought against the Theo Hamm Brewing Company and Robert L. Connally in district court here by Lelan Black.

Kales Lowe, Burley attorney representing Black, read the answers given by D. A. M. Ockelberry, orthopedic surgeon, while S. T. Lowe and Defense Attorney John Daly read the questions. The deposition covered treatment given in Salt Lake City. X-rays, a bill and other items were entered as evidence.

Dr. Charles Baymer, Twin Falls physician, testified regarding his treatment of Black.

During the Wednesday afternoon session Dr. Morton Outer, who treated Black at Magic Valley Memorial hospital, and two members of the hospital administrative staff, testified.

Medical records brought to the trial by Charlotte Buck, hospital records librarian, were accepted as evidence upon completion of her testimony. Marian Turner, hospital business manager, presented accounts of Black's hospital X-ray and physiotherapy bills.

Support Hearing Is Asked by Man

Preliminary hearing of the child non-support charges against Charles Dorwin Brannon is scheduled in Twin Falls Justice court at 10 a.m. May 6.

Brannon requested the hearing during his arraignment Wednesday, after which he was returned to the county jail under $500 bond.

He was released on bond Thursday.

WORD "SINISTER" ABUSED

The other day a political candidate was quoted as ascribing to his opponent a "sinister internationalist liberal."

We won't mention any names here, since it isn't necessary to the argument. But we'd like to suggest that this kind of talk is pretty foolish in present-day America.

In the first place, one must assume that the candidate who uttered these words favors a contrasting outlook, which he might want to describe as "nationalist conservatism."

That's all right. But we have always understood that one of democracy's central ideas was to offer the citizenry at least two opposing viewpoints, so the voters would have a choice. The right of choice is fundamental to the nation of popular government.

To label the opposition outlook as "sinister" is to suggest instantly to the electorate that it is not a legitimate alternative. The logical extension of that tactic is to propose that there be only one viewpoint, the one held by the "nationalist, conservative" candidate. Where, then, would be the choice?

Just how "sinister" is it in this country to be an internationalist and a liberal?

Obviously, America has always had strong liberal strains in its political texture. Some historians insist that basically the American people are pretty conservative. Some would disagree. But none denies the existence of liberal elements, and none would discourage them.

There are fuzzy liberals, misguided liberals,phony liberals, just as there are wrong-headed and confused conservatives. But that is no reason to damn either category wholesale. We need both. Their existence is one assurance of a range of choice in politics.

As for internationalism, right now this country has a whole handful of policies which by any fair measure can only be described as internationalist in character. Membership in the U.N., in NATO, the foreign aid programs, collaborative arrangements for the defense of the Pacific, these and others have won consistent bipartisan approval from congress and the executive branch over the postwar years.

Is President Eisenhower "sinister" because he supports and furthers these policies? Are the members of congress who back them also "sinister"?

The answer is no, and the men who hold nationalistic or isolationist views are not to be so damned, either. Again, we must have this range of choice.

We ought soon to have had enough in this country of political argument whose real logic leads to a singleness of outlook and one-party government.

STANDARDIZED AT LAST

Department of defense has finally standardized "The Star-Spangled Banner."

It also designated "Hail to the Chief" as the official salute to the President of the United States.

This navy arrangement of "Oh, Say Can You See—" will be the official one for all service organizations. Up to this time there have been so many arrangements of the national anthem that few bands trying to play in unison could come out together at the end.

How the old Scotch ballad "Hail to the Chief" came to be adopted as the American President's musical salute has always been something of a mystery. But some recent research by the marine corps dug up the fact that President John Tyler's second wife, Julia Gardiner, of New York, was responsible.

She had traveled abroad often and noticed all the flourishes and drum rolls given to foreign dignitaries. After she married President Tyler in 1844, she decided that her husband should be given similar treatment.

So she arranged to have the marine band play "Hail to the Chief" at White House functions, just before "The Star-Spangled Banner" was played. The custom stuck, and now it's official.

ANOTHER FALSE SIGN

We can all be glad that Romania has released two youths whom it held as hostages in an effort to turn their father, a naturalized American, into a spy for the communist homeland. President Eisenhower's personal appeal to the Romanian government may have played an important part in the release.

No doubt some will seize on this event as another sign that the reds are softening their attitude toward the west. But from other such incidents we ought long since to have learned that this is not likely the case.

In a recent book, a tough-minded-Frenchman named Raymond Aron made a very telling point about communism, as directed from Moscow. It was this:

Under the late Joseph Stalin, communist practice was often extraordinarily and unnecessarily ruthless, even for a totalitarian dictatorship.

It is possible to dispense with some of these more brutal practices without in any way altering the basic purpose of the Kremlin—to conquer the world, one way or another.

So what we are probably witnessing is not a fundamental change of heart but a shucking off of the more exaggerated forms of red terror.

POT SHOTS

WASHINGTON—G. Mennen Williams' decision to seek reelection as governor of Michigan signalizes Walter P. Reuther's bid to become the dominant labor politician in the Democratic party, as the late Philip Murray and William Green were during the Roosevelt Truman era. It is also regarded as the soap magnate's announcement of his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1956.

The amiable, folk-dancing, and hand-shaking Williams faced the choice of trying to be "Michigan's first four-term executive or of opposing Sen. Homer Ferguson next fall. It is conceded that Williams would have given Ferguson a hard fight, and Democratic headquarters would have preferred that he run for the senate in order to clinch control of that body.

Blair Moody, former Washington newspaper correspondent and a two-year senator by Williams' appointment, is expected to tangle with Ferguson, if he can win in the primary. Whereas, they dreaded a battle with Williams, the G.O.P. now feel more confident of Ferguson's victory.

REUTHER'S CONVINCING ARGUMENTS—While Williams had his own reason for his decision, it is generally believed that the CIO president will be the most convincing arguments. Without the CIO vote in the great automobile centers, Williams would have been defeated in the Eisenhower landslide in 1952.

Obviously, as a four-term governor in this populous industrial state, Williams will carry more poundage at the 1956 convention than he was a freshman senator who had not cut his "baby teeth" on Capitol Hill. The Democrats are given to governors as White House offerings, having nominated four since 1900—Cox, Smith, Roosevelt, Stevenson.

Thus, to reelect, William will rank among Democratic front runners with Adlai E. Stevenson, Sen. Stuart Symington, Missouri; Sen. Estes Kefauver, Tennessee; Sen. Richard B. Russell, Georgia, and Sen. John Johnson, Texas. To that list may be added FDR, Jr., if he defeats Dewey next fall.

CHO PRESIDENT EXHORTING WORKERS—In view of Williams' past and prospective debts to Reuther, the brilliant and ambitious head of the CIO would become a more powerful figure at Washington than the timid and easygoing Murray and Green were from 1933 until their death. He would tower over George L. Meany, AFL head, and John L. Lewis, boss of the United Mine workers, if his protege reaches the White House.

In possible preparation for the role of president-maker, Reuther is expanding his political operations. Despite a certain coolness between him and David J. McDonald, head of the CIO steel workers, the automobile chieftain seeks to enlist this Pennsylvania-Ohio block in the Williams-for-president movement. He is whooping it up among workers in the vast airplane plants clustered around Dallas, Tex. And He is the most belligerent Eisenhower assailant among organized labor's hierarchy.

LABOR LEADER'S DEMANDS—As a cabinet member without portfolio in a "Williams administration," the able and likable Reuther would advance entirely new economic concepts on behalf of the workingmen. His principal interests are not such bread-and-butter things as wages, hours and working conditions. Those objectives have been achieved, and it is doubtful if current standards will ever be lowered, barring disastrous war or depression.

Reuther regards himself, and is so considered in Americans for Democratic action circles, as a labor philosopher. He demands a wage and job, labor's active participation with management in the conduct of corporate affairs and broad taxation revision in favor of low-income groups. His critics denounced his tax theories as a "soak the rich" program.

With these two "it" boys collaborating in an orbit-to-the-White-House march—it might be called a "movement"—the Williams-Reuther machine will be watched closely and jealously by rival politicians in both major parties.

VIEWS OF OTHERS

RIVER PORT AREAS MORE ACTIVE

With the Columbia river about to embark on a new era of water transport, port commissioners up and down the McNary pool are working overtime these days to attract new industries into their port areas and adjacent industrial sites. Just the other day we ran a news story telling of the new oil products pipeline going into service between the Port of Pasco and the Common carrier pipeline through Fesco linking Salt Lake City with Spokane. In the same issue we items showing other business expansions in the port area. There's more to come.

Walla Walla port commissioners are seeking new industries for the Wallula-Atalla areas. We are endeavoring to get new industries along the Columbia and Snake rivers in Franklin county. And now the port of Umatilla commission is stirring itself and has employed an ex-congressman to go to Washington and learn whether congress is likely to grant funds to dredge the Columbia at Umatilla. The key question he will ask, though, is whether the pool level for the proposed John Day dam will be set at 202 or 205 feet. The higher elevation would make dredging unnecessary.

Pasco's port is thus meeting new competition and will likely have more. But as long as we progress as we have in building up port facilities, we need not worry. We still have decided advantages, not the least of which was an earlier start. —Columbia Basin News.

CAVEAT EMPTOR

Amenable as we become to the idea that it might be okay to trade a bit more with the Soviets, under cagey conditions, we would hope not to see our friends get stuck by them in the way the Egyptians have just suffered.

Egypt thought she was getting a bargain in kerosene from Romania. Bought 360,000 tons of the stuff at a price 15 per cent below the world markets. But Egypt neglected to analyze the fine print in the contract and the kerosene arrived at Alexandria this month. It looked off color.

When Egyptians tried to burn it in their lamps it burned the wicks to ashes and covered the chimneys with black-out soot. It was kerosene, maybe, but to the folks in the land of the Pharaoh it looks more like fuel oil. Now it has to be expensively processed, and blooey! go the 15 per cent savings.

—Maybe coal oil lamps behind the iron curtain are made of sterner stuff than those of Egypt. Maybe, too, if Egyptians had had better lights or sharper eyes they might not have bought the no-good oil. But their experience goes to show that if you must trade with disreputable dealers, watch out. The attractive deals they offer you may be shady as lamp soot.—Chicago Daily News.

DRINKING WATER FROM PACIFIC?

Maybe the time is coming when we won't have to reach out to far-distant rivers for the water that makes our southwest growth and progress possible.

The federal government has announced it is ready to start field tests of some new methods of turning salt water and brackish water into drinkable liquid at a cost that would not be prohibitive.

One method, a Senate committee has been told, can produce fresh water from brackish western waters at a cost of $4 to $40 an acre-foot, depending on the amount of salt in the water.

The previous lowest cost for conversion has been around $400 an acre-foot.

Until the recent rate increase city water has been delivered to consumers at a cost of about $60 an acre-foot. This includes, of course, the cost of service and of maintaining and expanding the water system.

We can hope that the field tests will be successful and that we'll be on our way to dipping into the blue Pacific for our drinking water when we need more of it.

Meanwhile, we can be glad we have our present abundant supply from the Owens and Colorado rivers and glad also that our engineers have set their sights on the future for more from inland sources.—Los Angeles Mirror.

POT SHOTS

NEW YORK—The Savannah Morning News, which has seemed to regard me as a credit to our noble profession—nevertheless took me to the woodshed last week in an editorial on the subject of the American press.

"But, by and large, each paper remains an entity with virtues and faults peculiarly its own... There is not a spot in this country where a reader cannot obtain in full variety those newspapers which best suit his tastes or which he respects."

"I am not a journalist of the other—handed school—I hold the only side of any question that a newspaper should present."

"There is a little more—but I believe I am not unfair in stopping at this point with a courteous rejoinder that I find flaws as well as merit in the foregoing." To close, I call attention to some strong pertinent thought on the same general theme by the New York Daily News. The News says the McCarthy "trial" has "produced a curious reaction in many of the most respectable (less and less respected) newspapers. These publications pay a great deal of lip-service to the old American principle that a man is to be presumed innocent until found guilty."

"But in the case now before the U. S. public opinion, these papers are convicting Senator McCarthy daily of high crimes and misdemeanors—and not only in their editorial columns but also in what purport to be news stories but are actually editorials printed without shame or warning in the news columns."

"Unquestionably, the press is under public scrutiny and suspicion mostly, I think, because of the conduct of the New York Times and Herald Tribune, which has been a dramatic shock to the people and a blow to the whole fourth estate."

GOTTA DO SOMETHING

Dear Pot Shots:

I read a few letters concerning the advisability of growing whiskers for the Golden Jubilee. Some folks might favor it, while others are outspoken in their opposition.

But that is it, may, if even 10 percent of the males in Twin Falls would—and could—grow whiskers, they might accomplish something that hasn't been achieved yet.

They might possibly arouse a little interest in our 50th anniversary. Have you heard anyone talking about it on the street?

BATTERED, UNBOWED

It's uncanny! Every day or so we read where one of those once-fancy school "crosswalk signs" has been struck a blow again. Yet the next time we happen to drive past that particular intersection, there's the sign on duty out in the middle of the street again.

Oh, they might look a bit battered, but they're doing a noble job of smashing fenders and breaking headlights. It seems one of the signs even proved the undoing of a tipsy gent behind the steering wheel.

Who keeps count? Just how many times have those signs gone down for the count only to pop right back up again? And which sign has taken the worst beating?

EAGER

Dear Sir: The practice of local drivers "judging" on stop signs in Twin Falls is going to cause a serious accident one of these days.

Next time you see a long line of cars piled up behind a stop sign, just watch to see how many of them disregard the sign. Apparently they think just because they had to stop two or three car lengths away from the stop sign they've observed the law. So cars come barreling out into the intersection one behind the other with only the first one having observed the stop.

Would drivers be so eager if they realized they were rushing into a possibly serious accident?

Kansas City Matador

This method of subduing a runaway steer isn't recommended, although it takes plenty of courage to face a wild-eyed beast while armed only with a hammer. The Hereford, which escaped from a railroad car near the stockyards, led pursuers a wild chase through downtown streets. Finally, cornered in front of the Kansas City, Mo., city hall it outmaneuvered this unidentified city matador but was captured shortly afterward. It took 10 men to truss the infuriated animal for shipment back to stockyards pen. (AP wirephoto)

Hank Lauds Kentucky Derby As "Toughest Race in World"

By HENRY McLEMORE

Even Bill Corum hasn't pointed out this fact of the Kentucky
Derby:

He has never mentioned, since he succeeded Matt Winn as president of Churchill Downs, that it places the greatest strain on horses and humans of any race in the world.

I will admit that the Belmont Stakes, run later in the year, and even a greater distance than the Derby, is a truer test of horses aged three.

So is the English Derby, because it requires the horses to run uphill and down, whereas the American copy of it is on the flat.

The race is great because human beings are willing to undergo the tortures of the wicked to be on hand when it is run.

I, myself, have undergone every suffering aside from being hanged

by the thumbs, to report a Derby.

Not just see it—but to cover it. And I have never regretted one second.

terhouse is out, please look no further could see the Derby and the World Series would run neck and neck.

I believe that an owner would prefer to have his silks in front when they pass the judges' stand at the Derby—than he would in any other race. I believe Louisville provides an atmosphere of racing that no other place in the country can provide. I believe that if the winner of the Derby was dropped to 12 cents, the Derby would still have a full field.

Proposing
Water Project

APRIL 29 (P)—Two congressional army committees of public works and utilities yesterday voted to authorize joint use of a $7 million dollar water and flood control project by the federal government, the state, and private water and power companies. Mack R. Wash, of a house public works, before whom the bill was introduced, said the bill was in consideration "very much" on the basis of testimony he heard in the subcommittee, he said, and there appears to be any opposition.

APRIL 29 (P)—Representative Ellis C. Cox, of Ore., would provide for construction of a dam on the McCloud river. It would pay all power costs of the project, roughly 10% of the $7 million total cost, and Gov. Paul Patterson, who was in the hearing room after an initial morning session, submitted a statement on the project later. A similar bill was submitted by Idaho's Jordan.

APRIL 29 (P)—Pvt. and Schine spent about an hour yesterday with the McCloskey committee staff. They worked, but brushed reporters in tight-lipped silence. Schine, spent an hour with Senator Morris K. Udall and Roy M. Cohn, director of McCarthy's investigation committee, and other members, including Frank G. Clark, of the staff. ## Ohio Infant Is Already Fond Of Air Travel

COLUMBUS, O., April 29 (AP)—It's getting so little Linda Starr Hull won't let her parents rock her to sleep.

She would rather have an airplane do it.

Linda is one of a rising generation of children who, before they are old enough to know it, have become veteran air travelers. She has flown 7,000 miles and is five months old.

"Her mother and I can't rock her to sleep. But put her in an airplane, and the rougher the weather the sounder she sleeps," said her father, Starr Hull. He is a traveling man for a wholesale refrigeration equipment firm.

Mrs. Hull said she and the baby like to go with Hull on his travels and flying is the easiest way to do it.

"Our doctor said it would be all right to take the baby on flights and we haven't had any trouble at all," the mother said.

On one flight when the pilot went up over a storm an oxygen mask was put on Linda. She slept like a log.

Linda, who was born last Thanksgiving day, made her first flight from Columbus to Chicago when 11 weeks and six days old.

"That was just for practice," Hull said. In March the family flew to Los Angeles and back. Since then she has made shorter hops around the midwest. She is an honorary "junior hostess" of two airlines and has a pair of wings.

Army Lawyer Protests Way Of Examining

WASHINGTON, April 29 (AP)—Army Attorney Joseph N. Welch protested today at the way Counsel Ray H. Jenkins questioned Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens at the army-McCarthy hearings.

Welch urged Jenkins, a Knoxville, Tenn., criminal lawyer, to "please remember this is not a murder trial" and to accord Stevens "at least ordinary courtesy."

Stevens himself had complained earlier that Jenkins was hammering away at him with such rapid-fire questions that "I don't get a chance to answer one before you ask another. I'm very upset about it."

Democratic Sens. John L. McClellan, Ark., and W. Stuart Symington, Mo., promptly expressed confidence in Jenkins' conduct of the questioning. Temporary Chairman Karl E. Mundt, R. S. D., told Welch that Stevens "should not expect special treatment because of his position as a cabinet officer."

"Generals and privates, secretaries and senators, are all on the same level before this committee," said Mundt. "We are trying to get the truth."

Hal Calls for Honor to Baby, New Hero for U. S. Economy

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK, April 29 (AP)—If you see any babies around, don't hesitate to smile at them, pat them on their little back and tell them what a great job they're doing for the country.

For this is National Baby week, a proper time to honor the new hero of the American economy.

The baby always has been a big heart throb in the home, but he hardly was regarded as a big figure in industry.

He is today. The kid in diapers is a kingpin of our national prosperity. It is everybody's business to be nice to babies, because babies are nice for practically everybody's business.

Catering to babies is now a five-billion dollar a year business. In 1953 some 3,890,000 babies arrived here, 70,000 more than the year before, and the production lines are still going full blast. No wonder that, even in as small a country as Holland, it is against the law to shoot storks.

Typical of the businessmen who have benefited from the nation's rising infant crop is Jack Turk, who manufactures baby garments. Before the baby boom started, Turk had 12 employees and made only blankets. Now he has 300 employees.

In three factories that turn out 75 specialized products for babies.

"Babies come into the world bare of any inventory," said Turk contentedly. "They need a lot of things right away."

"As a matter of fact, babies are customers even before they are born. The average parents now spend $50 for a layette in advance of birth."

A survey Turk made of 10,000 infant wear outlets showed some new trends in the market, such as:

Because parents now buy more baby clothes in advance, the old tradition of "pink for the girl and blue for the boy" no longer holds true. The favorite colors now are mint, maize and white.

About 60 per cent of all baby goods are bought as gifts. Less than five per cent of men shop for baby items.

"The trend now is to make items for babies that are safer, more comfortable and more colorful," Turk said. "We are finding that color is an important factor in satisfying the psychological and emotional needs of the infant."

This has resulted in such innovations as plastic nursing bottles that won't shatter, folding carriages that take up less space and disposable diapers. Turk himself has pioneered with acetate fiber (interlock) garments for babies allergic to wool, and a blanket with sliding rings that can be attached to crib slats to prevent babies from smothering.

Dog Comes Back After Being Put to Sleep, Buried by Vet

HOUSTON, April 28 (AP)—This is the story of "Stray," a 5-year-old cocker spaniel who was put to sleep by a veterinarian and buried 30 miles from home.

Thirteen days later the crippled "Stray" returned home.

"I almost fainted but managed to run to a neighbor's home," Mrs. Billie Smith said yesterday. She had heard the dog whining outside a window Tuesday night as she watched television.

She called the veterinarian.

"I trembled all over," the vet said. "It was 'Stray,' all right, only instead of his usual red hair he was covered from head to tail with dirt, a dirty bandage, dangling from the hind leg."

The leg had been injured by an automobile April 11. After a conference between Mrs. Smith and the veterinarian, it was decided the dog should be put to sleep and buried.

"I buried him myself out on Chocolate Bayou road and there wasn't a sign of life in him," the vet said yesterday. "Mrs. Smith said that since it appeared his leg would never mend perfectly it was best to put him to sleep."

Mrs. Smith's 5-year-old son, Robert, found the dog three years ago. "Stray" followed the younger home.

Robert said the dog was hungry and naturally we took care of him," Mrs. Smith said. "He never left."

Yesterday, "Stray" ate a blue plate special at the vet's dog hospital, with plenty of vitamins, mineral supplement, milk and first grade meat.

The amazed vet said he'll take care of "Stray" free of charge.

Senate Approves Sugar Agreement

WASHINGTON, April 28 (AP)—The Senate yesterday formally ratified the international sugar agreement which aims at stabilizing world sugar prices and supplies.

The vote was 60-16, far more than the two-thirds required for formal ratification.

Before ratification, the Senate accepted by a 74-2 vote a resolution by Senator Dirksen, R., Ill., which requires that any change made by the international sugar council, governing agency set up by the agreement, must be ratified by the United States in the same manner as the original agreement.

8 Burglaries Confessed by Hansen Boys

Four runaway boys from Hansen were released to their parents Wednesday after admitting entry of eight buildings in Hansen, Kimberly and Murtough within the last few weeks.

They were arrested by Cassia Sheriff LePage Layton east of Murtough Tuesday night and turned over to Twin Falls Deputy Sheriff Paul Ross.

Ross said the boys claimed they were on their way to Florida. He said they admitted breaking into the Kimberly Seed company, Kimberly elevator, Magic Valley Bean company, Hansen elevator, L. W. Moore warehouse in Hansen, Hansen school, warehouse in Murtough and the Modern Woodmen of America hall, Hansen.

Ross said they were released pending further orders from the prosecuting attorney. Three of the boys are 13 and the fourth is 14.

Total money taken in the burglaries was about $20, including $10 from the school and $7 to $8 from the Woodmen hall. All of the burglaries took place within the past three or four weeks.

A tachometer was taken from one of the warehouses. Other lost consisted of minor items such as pencils, a flashlight, pens, stationery and candy. The boys had the tachometer and a magnifying glass with them when arrested. Other items were found in their homes and school desks. The money had been spent.

Entry to most of the places was made through windows. In some of the places, windows were already broken.

The dentists, and may their shadows never grow less, want us to be more cautious about allowing children to eat candy. They point out that candy, especially overuse of it, is likely to cause cavities. They advise that immediately after the candy is eaten the toothbrush be used.

Dentists know best what is good for children's teeth and I, for one, am heartily with them in their interest in this very important health care. I know how few school children have their first molars by the time they reach junior high school. Those precious teeth have been lost forever. Any measure that will insure saving teeth ought to have our cordial support.

Now there is a wide span between what to do, and what can be done when dealing with children. Often we have to face hard facts that oblige us to do the best we can, holding to principles, and hope for the best. Prohibition never works in human relationships, something I learned once to my everlasting grief.

Children and candy are like strawberries and cream. Given the two it is well nigh impossible to keep them apart, and who wants to? I have met many, many children but never have I met one whose eyes did not shine with anticipation when they fell on a piece of candy. What to do?

I ration the candy and I always manage to have handy a bowl of red apples. I select smaller apples so

New Method Reported for 'Dwarf' Trees

WASHINGTON, April 29 (AP)—A new technique for dwarfing fruit and ornamental trees is reported by a Harvard scientist who said it is less likely to leave the tree subject to decay.

As described by Dr. Karl Sax, it involves cutting a ring of bark from the tree, turning it upside down and placing it back again. This inversion of a round strip of bark prevents nutrient substances from "flowing down into the root system—thus checking the tree's growth and inducing earlier fruiting in the case of fruit trees."

But, unlike previous techniques for accomplishing such objectives, the new method involves no killing of tree tissue because the bark makes a living union with the tree. Sax said in a report to the National Academy of Sciences.

Sax said older techniques have involved either "girdling or killing" of a section of bark, or killing a section of the tree stem itself.

Sax said that when the bark ring is inverted, a blockage is placed on the "phloem"—part of the wood structure through which nutrient materials are normally carried down to the root system.

He said the same thing could also be accomplished without killing tree tissue by applying X-rays to a segment of the stem. But he added:

"The bark inversion technique can be modified to produce varying degrees of dwarfing of fruit and ornamental trees."

England to End Meat Rationing

LONDON, April 29 (AP)—The roast beef of old England comes into its juicy own again at midnight July 3.

Food Minister Gwynn Lloyd-George told the house of commons Wednesday: "Years of meat and bacon rationing will end at that hour."

The announcement sounded the death knell for rationing forced on Britain by war and postwar shortages. Butter, margarine, cooking fats and cheese will be ration free after May 9. Meat and bacon are the last of the many once-rationed foods to be freed.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Badow, Sacramento, Calif., have returned to their home following a visit with his brother, Clarence Badow, and family, and sister, Mrs. Ted Vaux, and family.

39 New Dentists Added for Idaho In Last 2 Years

BOISE, April 29 (AP)—Thirty-nine dentists have come to Idaho in the past two years, the largest increase for a similar period in the state's history, the public health committee of the Idaho State Dental association was told Wednesday.

Dr. Gerald P. Larson, committee chairman and acting director of the state health department's dental program, termed the increase one of the outstanding accomplishments of the past two years.

The state now has about 200 dentists.

Unless the armed forces draft additional Idaho dentists, Dr. Larson said, the dental manpower situation will continue to improve as a result of efforts by the committee, health department and a special committee of the association headed by Dr. Martin Edwards, Payette.

The committee also reviewed the status of the 11 fluoridation installations serving 19 communities, community dental health programs and planned next year's dental health activities.

Damages Denied For Auto Mishap

BOISE, April 29 (AP)—A damage award of $11,592 to a young Boise motorcyclist injured in a street accident was disallowed Wednesday by the state supreme court.

Justice C. J. Taylor wrote in a 3-2 decision that John Matheson, 20, had only himself to blame for crashing into a hardware truck on a Boise street in August, 1952. He ordered the case against the Idaho Hardware and Plumbing company dismissed.

Justice Darwin W. Thomas said in a dissent that it was up to the jury to determine the truth of testimony indicating Matheson had been speeding when the mishap occurred.

Meat Marketing to Exceed Estimates; Lower Pork, Stable Beef Prices Seen

CHICAGO, April 29 (AP)—More beef coming to market than first thought—more pigs on the farms eating their way in the same direction—the next few months look bright for the nation's meat eaters and family budget keepers.

Packers are revising upwards estimates of the total amount of beef, veal, lamb and pork that will find its way to the table this year.

If they're right, it should mean the tumble of the costly pork chop by fall, and stable prices, at least, for beef. Lamb, however, still looks like a fairly rare and expensive dish.

Unless the armed forces draft additional Idaho dentists, Dr. Larson said, the dental manpower situation will continue to improve as a result of efforts by the committee, health department and a special committee of the association headed by Dr. Martin Edwards, Payette.

The committee also reviewed the status of the 11 fluoridation installations serving 19 communities, community dental health programs and planned next year's dental health activities.

Ignore the corn acreage allowances this spring and plant as much as they please. That indicates a program of raising feed for their own hogs rather than planting with an eye on price support levels for corn.

Americans' meat eating habits may be changing as a result of these ups and downs of various meat prices, and perhaps because of diet shifts away from fat.

The American Meat Institute notes that Americans ate more beef last year than at any time in the 54 years records have been kept. Not since 1935 had Americans eaten more beef per capita than pork.

The rush of cattle to the stockyards in the early months of this year helped the housewife offset in part the rising cost of pork. Packers think that the drought-ravaged range lands of the southwest may send a large number of cattle to market again this fall, unless rains are above normal.

Recent rains have helped the grass there, but cattlemen say it will take time to restore much of the range that was badly damaged by drought. Southwest cattlemen, incidentally, tend to be gloomy about the long-term chances of the cattle population keeping pace with the growth of the human population.

Pork marketing has been short so far this year, but the resulting high price led farmers to increase spring pig production by almost 10 per cent over a year ago. By fall these packers should start a steady march to market. If that eases prices, as expected, many farmers may market their pigs early.

Farmers' intentions of farrowing a larger crop of fall pigs for next spring's pork market are foreshadowed in reports that many in the corn-hog belt of the midwest will poultry consumption has tended up sharply, too, partly because of meat scarcities during and at the end of the war, and partly because of high beef and pork prices off and on since then.

Right now the institute is busy revising upward its earlier estimate of this year's per capita consumption. First, it agreed with the department of agriculture that beef production would be off slightly from a year ago. Now AMI thinks it will be up a little.

In spite of the higher cattle marketings now anticipated, the institute thinks the consumption of beef per person will be 76 pounds this year, about the same as in 1953. This takes into account that there'll be more Americans this year than last to eat it. Veal consumption will be around 10 pounds, which is higher than in 1953. Both pork at 58 pounds and lamb and mutton at a little better than 4 pounds will be lower than last year. Poultry consumption should rise slightly to 21/2 pounds per person.

At commencement exercises, diplomas and awards will be presented by Maurice Klags, Ralph Ward and School Supt. Maurice Welsh. Miss Carlson will play the processional and recessional and the Rev. Mr. Trapp will pronounce the benediction.

33 Youths to Join Church

SPokane, April 29 (AP)—Officers from Washington, Idaho, Oregon and Montana will meet at Gowen Field Sunday to make final plans for the June 13-27 encampment of Pacific northwest air national guardmen there.

Good Variety Of Values on Meats Is Due

By The Associated Press

Housewives will find a good assortment of meats on the list of specials in the nation's food stores this week-end.

Generally, meat prices will be down a bit from a week ago. In the case of pork, however, prices are still so high that only rarely will you find it among the week-end specials.

By and large, retail beef prices are at the same levels as a year ago, although wholesale prices are slightly higher.

Among beef cuts mentioned as featured for the week-end were boneless chuck pot roast, round bone shoulder roast, steaks and rib roast. Price reductions will range up to 8 cents.

Steaming and frying chickens will be among the specials in a good number of stores. The average price cut will be around 2 cents a pound.

Onion prices have shown some improvement in the wholesale markets, but that vegetable remains high on the list of good buys. Also recommended: Old crop potatoes, spinach, celery, asparagus, radishes, escarole and romaine and big Boston lettuce.

The first California long white potatoes showed up in eastern markets this week, and from Florida came the season's first domestic watermelons. Elsewhere in the vegetables division, cabbage, beans, peppers, tomatoes and corn moved high.

Strawberries were nominated as the best buy in fruits this week. The first from California are expected in the east early next week.

Oranges fruit prices went up this week, but many stores will feature Florida Valencia at special prices.

Cerebral Palsy Is Topic for Grange

KIMBERLY, April 29—Mrs. Winifred White, a teacher at the cerebral palsy school in Twin Falls, spoke at the meeting of the Kimberly Grange Monday.

The program was presented by Mrs. Matilda Bulcher. Taking part were Mrs. Effie Daigut, Tim Drown and Stacy Drown. A collection was taken for the muscular dystrophy fund.
